1. Aims

At Southfields Academy we believe that Relationships and Sex Education forms an integral part of our Personal, Social, Health Education (PSHE) and Citizenship curriculum, and it is linked to the National Curriculum for Science. Through the RSE curriculum we aim to -

- Provide a carefully planned curriculum that covers human development, relationships, sexuality and family life, in line with statutory requirements and in an appropriate way taking into account the students age and stage of development
- Help students develop feelings of self-respect, confidence and empathy for others
- Help students stay safe in the modern world
- Prepare students for puberty, the changes their bodies will experience and the importance of health and hygiene
- Teach students the correct vocabulary to describe themselves and their bodies
- Create a positive culture around the issues of sexuality and relationships
- Provide a positive framework within which discussions on these issues can take place
- Students will have a safe environment where their questions can be answered in an age appropriate honest manner thus developing capacity to decide on issues relating to their body, sexuality and sexual health and to be aware where appropriate support can be sought.

2. Statutory requirements

The RSE curriculum is outlined in the DfE Relationships and Sex Education and Health Education statutory Guidance for governing bodies, proprietors, head teachers, principals, senior leadership teams, teachers July 2019 and it becomes statutory for schools from September 2020. This guidance builds on previous statutory legislation, including the Education Act 1996, the Equalities Act 2010, and the Children and Social Work Act 2017.

Schools have long been expected to provide education that prepares children to take their place in the adult world, learning about how their bodies work, how to be healthy and stay safe both in the real world and online, and how to get on with others in a positive and friendly way. Since the Equalities Act of 2010 schools have also been required to ensure that the education they provide incorporates and promotes the inclusion of all aspects of society, with reference to specific protected characteristics such as race, religion/belief, age, sex/gender, gender reassignment, marital/partnership status, sexuality and ability, and that this education should be impartial.

At Southfields Academy we teach RSE as set out in this policy.

3. Policy Development

This policy has been developed in consultation with staff, students and parents. The consultation and policy development process involved the following steps:

1. Review – a working group pulled together all the relevant information including relevant national and local guidance. This working party included Deputy head teacher, Teacher in charge of PSHE and key staff delivering RSE

2. Staff consultation – key members of staff (including Head of Science, SENCO and school nurse) were given the opportunity to look at the policy and make recommendations
3. Parent/stakeholder consultation –parents and any interested parties were invited to attend a meeting about the policy and are given the chance to discuss further at parents evening and forums
4. Student consultation – we investigated what students wanted from their RSE through student voice
5. Ratification – once amendments were made, the policy was shared with governors and ratified and will be reviewed every three years

4. Definitions

The aim of RSE is to give young people the information they need to help them develop healthy, nurturing relationships of all kinds, not just intimate relationships. It should enable them to know what a healthy relationship looks like and what makes a good friend, a good colleague and a successful marriage or other type of committed relationship. It should also cover contraception, developing intimate relationships and resisting pressure to have sex (and not applying pressure). It should teach what is acceptable and unacceptable behaviour in relationships.

Effective RSE does not encourage early sexual experimentation. It should teach young people to understand human sexuality and to respect themselves and others. It enables young people to mature, build their confidence and self-esteem and understand the reasons for delaying sexual activity. Effective RSE also supports people, throughout life, to develop safe, fulfilling and healthy sexual relationships, at the appropriate time.

5. Curriculum

RSE focuses on giving young people the information they need to help them develop healthy, appropriate relationships including: -

- Families
- Respectful relationships including friendships
- Online and media
- Being safe
- Intimate and sexual relationships including sexual health

Our PSHE curriculum is delivered by specialist teachers within the Social Science department and is aimed at providing high quality PSHE education for our students.

The importance of trained staff providing accurate information is central to our curriculum, and, in the absence of this information, students may seek less controlled and informed guidance themselves from the internet to answer questions they may have about issues covered in RE / RSE. Therefore, our curriculum is focused around providing unbiased information about issues affecting young people and reliable places to go for support.

We have developed the curriculum in consultation with parents, students and staff, taking into account the age, needs and feelings of students. If students ask questions outside the scope of this policy, teachers will respond in an appropriate manner so they are fully informed and do not seek answers online.

6. Delivery of RSE

RSE is taught within the PSHE curriculum, with biological aspects covered within the Science curriculum by the class teacher. Students also receive sessions focused on puberty and health (Physical and sexual) by the school nurse. RSE focuses on giving young people the information they need to help them develop healthy, nurturing relationships of all kinds including:

- Families
- Respectful relationships, including friendships
- Online and media
- Being safe
- Intimate and sexual relationships, including sexual health

For more information see appendices 1 and 2.

These areas of learning are taught within the context of family life taking care to ensure that there is no stigmatisation of children based on their home circumstances (families can include single parent families, LGBT parents, families headed by grandparents, adoptive parents, foster parents/carers amongst other structures) along with reflecting the sensitivity that some children may have a different support structure around them (for example: looked after children or young carers)

7. Roles and responsibilities

7.1 The governing board

The governing board will approve the policy for use within the school and hold the headteacher accountable for its implementation within the school.

7.2 The headteacher

The headteacher in association with the Teacher in Charge of PSHE is responsible for ensuring that RSE is taught consistently across the school, and for ensuring RSE is taught consistently across the school in line with the policy, and for managing parental requests for withdrawal from any non-statutory/ non science components of Sex Education taught within the school. The headteacher should also ensure that any external professionals engaged to deliver all or parts of the RE/RSE curriculum should fully understand and adhere to the required principle of impartial delivery.

7.3 School staff

Staff are responsible for delivering the curriculum when instructed in a responsible, sensitive way, for modelling positive attitudes to RE/RSE, for monitoring progress, for responding to the needs of individual Students.

Staff do not have the right to opt out of teaching RSE, and if staff have concerns, they should discuss them with their line manager and the Teacher in Charge of PSHE. Staff also have an entitlement to training, which prepares them to deliver RSE.

7.4 Students

Students are expected to engage fully in the lessons, and when discussing issues related to RE/RSE to treat the subject and others with respect and sensitivity. Students will be familiar with the ROCK (Respect, Open Mindedness, Communication, Cooperation and Communication and Kindness) rules which govern how students should conduct themselves in PSHE lessons.

Parents / Carers are consulted in the drafting of this policy and support the school in delivering the curriculum and to engage in any consultation process.

8. The Right to Withdraw

Parents/carers have the right to withdraw their child from any non-statutory/non science components of Sex Education up to and until three terms before the child becomes 16 years old. After this point the decision to withdraw or not becomes that of the young person.

Requests for withdrawals should be put in writing using the form found in appendix 3 of this policy and addresses to the headteacher.

A copy of withdrawal requests will be placed in the students' educational record. The headteacher or Teacher in Charge of PSHE will discuss the request with the parents and take appropriate action. Should a withdrawal be agreed, then the procedure for withdrawal should be outlined for example the student being given alternative work and supervision within another class.

9. Training

Staff are trained in the delivery of RSE as part of their ongoing INSET and the subject is revisited annually as part of ongoing staff training, and external staff such as the school nurse will hold appropriate professional qualifications such as degree modules in sexual health or equivalent. .

Specialist staff also have the opportunity to go on training courses from well-established and recognised PSHE organisations such as the PSHE Association and The Sex Education Forum.

10. Monitoring

Teacher in Charge of PSHE monitors the delivery of RSE.

Students' development in RSE is monitored by class teachers as part of our internal assessment systems.

In PSHE, students are assessed at the beginning (baseline) and end of each scheme of work to identify students' strengths and weaknesses on a given topic. Delivery of the scheme of work is adjusted to accommodate these needs.

Teaching and learning in RSE lessons is monitored further using book looks, learning walks and observations to maintain a high standard of delivery.

This policy will be reviewed by the headteacher, Teacher in Charge of PSHE and Head of Social Sciences every three years, and at each review the policy will be approved by the governing body.

B. End of Key stage Statements

By the end of secondary school

Schools should continue to develop knowledge on topics specified for primary as required and in addition cover the following content by the end of secondary.

Families

Students should know:

- that there are different types of committed, stable relationships.
- how these relationships might contribute to human happiness and their importance for bringing up children.
- what marriage is, including their legal status – for example, that marriage carries legal rights and protections not available to couples who are cohabiting or who have married, for example, in an unregistered religious ceremony.
- why marriage is an important relationship choice for many couples and why it must be freely entered into.
- the characteristics and legal status of other types of long-term relationships.
- the roles and responsibilities of parents with respect to raising of children, including the characteristics of successful parenting.
- how to determine whether other children, adults or sources of information are trustworthy, judge when a family, friend, intimate or other relationship is unsafe (and to recognise this in others' relationships), how to seek help or advice, including reporting concerns about others, if needed

Respectful relationships, including friendships

- Students should know:
- the characteristics of positive and healthy friendships, in all contexts including online, such as:
- trust, respect, honesty, kindness, generosity, boundaries, privacy, consent and the management of conflict
- reconciliation and ending relationships, this includes different (non-sexual) types of relationship
- practical steps they can take in a range of different contexts to improve or support respectful relationships
- how stereotypes, in particular stereotypes based on sex, gender, race, religion, sexual orientation or disability, can cause damage (for example, how they might normalise non-consensual behaviour or encourage prejudice)
- that in school and in wider society they can expect to be treated with respect by others, and that in turn they should show due respect to others, including people in positions of authority and due tolerance of other people's beliefs
- about different types of bullying (including cyberbullying), the impact of bullying, responsibilities of bystanders to report bullying and how and where to get help

- that some types of behaviour within relationships are criminal, including violent behaviour and coercive control
- what constitutes sexual harassment and sexual violence and why these are always unacceptable
- the legal rights and responsibilities regarding equality (particularly with reference to the protected characteristics as defined in the Equality Act 2010) and that everyone is unique and equal

Students should know:

- their rights, responsibilities and opportunities online, including that the same expectations of behaviour apply in all contexts, including online
- about online risks, including that any material someone provides to another has the potential to be shared online and the difficulty of removing potentially compromising material placed online
- not to provide material to others that they would not want shared further and not to share personal material which is sent to them
- what to do and where to get support to report material or manage issues online
- the impact of viewing harmful content that specifically sexually explicit material, for example pornography, presents a distorted picture of sexual behaviours, can damage the way people see themselves in relation to others and negatively affect how they behave towards sexual partners
- that sharing and viewing indecent images of children (including those created by children) is a criminal offence which carries severe penalties including jail
- how information and data is generated, collected, shared and used online

Being safe

Students should know:

- the concepts of, and laws relating to, sexual consent, sexual exploitation, abuse, grooming, coercion, harassment, rape, domestic abuse, forced marriage, honour-based violence and FGM, and how these can affect current and future relationships
- how people can actively communicate and recognise consent from others, including sexual consent, and how and when consent can be withdrawn, in all contexts, including online
- Sexual health, young people in Key Stage 4 will be aware of the various contraceptive methods including abstinence- to enable them to make an informed decision as to what method may work for them in the future.

Intimate and sexual relationships, including sexual health

Students should know:

- how to recognise the characteristics and positive aspects of healthy one-to-one intimate relationships, which include mutual respect, consent, loyalty, trust, shared interests and outlook, sex and friendship

- that all aspects of health can be affected by choices they make in sex and relationships, positively or negatively, for example physical, emotional, mental, sexual and reproductive health and wellbeing
- the facts about reproductive health, including fertility and the potential impact of lifestyle on fertility for men and women and menopause
- that there are a range of strategies for identifying and managing sexual pressure, including understanding peer pressure, resisting pressure and not pressurising others
- that they have a choice to delay sex or to enjoy intimacy without sex
- the facts about the full range of contraceptive choices, efficacy and options available
- the facts around pregnancy including miscarriage
- that there are choices in relation to pregnancy (with medically and legally accurate, impartial information on all options, including keeping the baby, adoption, abortion and where to get further help)
- how the different sexually transmitted infections (STIs), including HIV and AIDs, are transmitted, how risk can be reduced through safer sex (including through condom use) and the importance of and facts about testing
- about the prevalence of some STIs, the impact they can have on those who contract them and key facts about treatment
- how the use of alcohol and drugs can lead to risky sexual behaviour
- how to get further advice, including how and where to access confidential sexual and reproductive health advice and treatment

The Law

It is important to know what the law says about sex, relationships and young people, as well as broader safeguarding issues. This includes a range of important facts and the rules regarding sharing personal information, pictures, videos and other material using technology. This will help young people to know what is right and wrong in law, but it can also provide a good foundation of knowledge for deeper discussion about all types of relationships. There are also many different legal provisions whose purpose is to protect young people and which ensure young people take responsibility for their actions.

Students should be made aware of the relevant legal provisions when relevant topics are being taught, including for example:

- marriage
- consent, including the age of consent
- violence against women and girls
- online behaviours including image and information sharing (including 'sexting', youth-produced sexual imagery, nudes, etc.)
- pornography
- abortion
- sexuality

- gender identity
- substance misuse
- violence and exploitation by gangs
- extremism and radicalisation
- criminal exploitation (for example, through gang involvement or 'county lines' drugs operations)
- hate crime
- female genital mutilation (FGM)
